OIL SPILL CLEANUP

Workers required to assist with the cleanup of the large oil tanker spill near Gill Island, B.C. Three decades of work available, possibly more. May require exposure to toxic work conditions. No skills or experience required. Preference given to former fishermen, former angling guides, former seafood processors, and former whale watchers.

When Enbridge talks about jobs, maybe this is what they mean.

The Enbridge Northern Gateway pipeline would bring the risk of a major oil spill like the Exxon Valdez to the B.C. coast. If it goes ahead, 225 tankers per year would attempt to navigate the same coastal waters where the ferry Queen of the North sank. An oil spill on our coast would cripple our fishing and tourism industries – and an entire way of life.
